

ARTIST'S IMPRESSION OF CHRISTMAS EVE ON ATLANTIC SQUARE

Dec. 24, 1927

CHRISTMAS SCENE ON PARK ROW

SANTA CLAUS VISITS STAMFORD

Barley 1927

For the past week, the holiday and Christmas illuminations attracted the eyes of Artist T. From Park Row this artist takes a general view of Atlantic Square with its twinkling lights and the shop windows.

This fascinating night picture might easily remind one of those famous lines, "all the world is a Christmas tree and the many stars its candles be." Through the mysterious darkness great crowds swept on like some on-coming tide, they are attracted to brilliantly lighted window displays where this year Stamford has more than done itself proud. In the distance one can just make out the beautiful spire of St. John's R. C. Church, while the illuminated clock on the town hall is shown on the right where its metallic bell is tolling away the hours to that eventful day.
